To Rev. Robert Folger Wallcutt

[Portsmouth, N.H.] The writer says his "responsibility for the (Christian) Register is necessarily limited..." He and Rev. John H. Morison agreed that an article sent by Rev. May ought to be suppressed because it put Rev. May in a "worse position than he occupied before." The article referred to an issue of the Register which appeared in two versions, one of which omitted an article by Rev. John Parkman. The writer and Rev. Morison both deny the truth of Rev. May's charges, but do not explain the absence of the Parkman article from one of the two versions of the Register.

Dec. 8 To Anne Warren Weston No.98

«Philadelphia» The writer answers the addressee's letter to Charles Calistus Burleigh, in which an essay is requested for the addressee's book. Burleigh had gone to Haiti. Mrs. Lucretia Mott cannot undertake the essay on account of poor health. Many Philadelphians are interested in the struggle going on between the clergy and Garrison. The writer wants a copy of the annual report of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society. The writer likes the communication of William Ellery Channing to the public on the refusal of the Boston City government to grant the use of "the Hall (Faneuil Hall)"-"it makes the absurd excuses of [illegible] authorities appear ridiculous". Regrets the continued indis[illegible]ion of Angelina Emily Grimké. Doubts that the New England winters would suit the Grimkés.

Philadelphia. The writer, having received from the addressee news of Maria Chapman's convalescence, is relieved of anxiety. Refers to a New England convention in which Abby Kelley took a prominent part, and remarks on the jealous guarding of prerogatives by the gentlemen Abolitionists. Refers briefly to the burning of Pennsylvania Hall. Says that some of "our timid friends" have been upset by the resolution passed · passed by the women's convention respecting the duty of Abolitionists to associate with colored Americans. The opponents of the resolution want the colored people to issue a disclaimer, in order to forestall f[illegible]er hostile actions. Thinks the opposition is based on p[illegible]ice against color.

[Phila.] Talks about preparations for a fair. Has been in poor health. A Dr. Noble advised her "to dissipate a little". Speaks of placing J. M. M.'s sister at a school in Kimberton. E. M. Davis wrote a long letter to J. M. M. The sister of J. G. Rich wants J. M. M. to call on her and her brother. The writer has not had much success with her Anti-Slavery petitions. Refers to C. C. «Philadelphia» The writer wishes to remove the impression that "any of our thorough Anti-Slavery friends are turning back & discouraging the colored people from cooperating with our movements." It is only half-way Abolitionists, like Dr. «Joseph?» Parrish who are "now quaking with fear." The latter has already called the colored people together for the purpose of protesting against "such intercourse as that resolution contemplated."

Charles Calistus Burleigh cannot be spared because of his health and his being needed here. John Greenleaf Whittier will soon withdraw from the Freeman. "He must not array himself against our dear Wm. L. Garrison.- I should regret to lose him more than any other who lists that way..." Moses Cartland will probably succeed him as editor of the paper. ⌞Philadelphia⌟ The writer acknowledges letters received, the Liberty Bell and the North Star. The name North Star was chosen for their book by the managers of the Philadelphia Fair before they had heard of the paper. The writer, while disapproving of the proceedings of the New Organization, nevertheless would plead with her "dear friends of the other side" not to allow themselves "to be driven from the ground of non-resistance." While not judging the addressee as having acted improperly, but rather "as laboring for the whole," the writer wishes, with Mrs. Lydia Maria Child, that Garrison would record [illegible]ivisions in the societies "more sparingly in his pape[illegible] Refers to a perverted use made by Elizur Wright (in the Massachusetts Abolitionist)

Tells of a meeting in which it was agreed that a local German paper should be subscribed to instead of the Liberator. Comments on the reasons given by the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society for its attitude in regard to the New Organization. Mentions the difficulty of finding a replacement for J. G. ‹Dublin, Ireland› The writer refers to her experience of crossing the Atlantic to attend the so-called World Convention, which proved to be only a conference of the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society, whose Committee of Arrangements ruled out the attendance of women as delegates. The writer's attempt, with Anne Knight, Elizabeth Pease and a few others, to have a public meeting called for women was given up in despair. The acclaim which the writer received at her public appearances at Birmingham and Dublin furnished "proof that the objection to our admission were all hollow." To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

«Philadelphia» The writer has obtained permission from "Emmeline" and Sarah Douglass to have their pieces published in the Liberty Bell. Emmeline is the pseudonym of Mira Townsend, who made no objections to her real name's first appearance in the Liberty Bell. The writer sends lines on Dr. Channing by Benjamin Rush Plumly. The writer refers to a call on the addressee by Charles C. Burleigh. "I should feel no confidence in William «Henry» Burleigh, that he would not again betray our cause to please his party." However, the writer entertained Burleigh and his wife when they passed through the city and found no effort in [illegible]iving him "as Charles's brother, and as an A.S. poet." [illegible]riter has been admonished

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman and sisters

[Philadelphia] Invites Caroline Weston and her sisters to come to the annual meeting at Kennett and visit at the writer's house. Edmund Quincy is also welcome to stay there. Remarks on the prospects of Garrison's influence in England. The disposition to hear Frederick Douglass at the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society's meeting "seemed a little evidence of repentance..." Would have preferred the Standard to be less severe in its treatment of this Society. The writer desires gentle dealings "even with poor C[assius] M. Clay - so lamentably fallen & degraded." Remembers his anti-pacifistic utterances. Clay's p[illegible] reaches many in the South, where the anti-slavery in [illegible]rue American might do good, wherefore the writer would have it continue to circulate.
